AN HISTORICAL SKETCH OF THE MASSACHU-SETTS SOCIETY OF THE SONS OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION.

This volume will give a brief account of the origin of the Massachusetts Society of the Sons of the American Revolution, with the roll of members, and the services of their ancestors in the Revolutionary War; together with the officers and constitution of the National and State societies.

Under the impulse given to the patriotic sentiment of the country by the organization in California in 1876 of the "Sons of Revolutionary Sires," a meeting, preliminary to the organization of a similar society in Massachusetts, was held at the State House in Boston, March 30, 1889, when a temporary organization was made, and a committee appointed to report a constitution and a list of officers. At a subsequent meeting in Tremont Temple on April 19, a modified form of the constitution and by-laws of the New Jersey Society was adopted, and the following officers were chosen:

President, Hon. Charles H. Saunders, of Cambridge; Vice-President, Hon. Wm. M. Davenport, of Marlboro'; Secretary and Treasurer, C. S. Ward, of Allston; Historian, A. A. Stocker, M.D., Cambridge; Registrar, L. L. Tarbell, of Marlboro'.

Managers: John L. Stevenson, Boston; Nathan L. Revere, Worcester; A. H. Ward, Allston; Mark J. Folsom, Cambridge; Peter Fay, Southboro'; Hon. H. H. Coolidge, Boston; J. G. Crawford, Clinton; George W. Brown, Lexington; George A. Cotting, Hudson; William

B. Clarke, Boston; Alfred B. Fry, Boston; William H. Pearson, Roxbury; Calvin P. Ladd, Worcester; William Barnes, Marlboro'; and J. M. Cushing, Duxbury; Henry S. Huntington, of Dorchester, chaplain.

The admission fee was fixed at two dollars. It was subsequently voted that the annual meeting be held on the nineteenth of April, a day consecrated by the memories of Concord and Lexington. But the first annual meeting was this year held on another day, equally dear to the patriot heart of Massachusetts,—the Seventeenth of June, the anniversary of "Bunker Hill." At the business meeting, Alfred B. Fry was elected Secretary; John L. Stevenson, Treasurer; C. A. Staples, Chaplain; and A. Scott Harris, of Chelsea, and W. C. Sampson, of Boston, were added to the Board of Managers. Following the dinner, at the Parker House, speeches were made by the President, the Rev. Alexander McKenzie, the Hon. G. B. West, of Alabama, Gen. Edward H. Hincks, and Messrs. Tarbell, Fry, Barrett, and Clarke.

At a meeting of the Managers, August 7, 1889, Edwin S. Barrett, of Concord; James M. Barker, of Pittsfield; and Moses P. Palmer, of Groton, were elected to fill vacancies on the Board.

The Society visited Concord, October 19. 1889, on the occasion of its first autumnal field-day, and in commemoration of the final surrender at Yorktown. The day was perfect, and about one hundred members availed themselves of the opportunity to visit this old historic town, which becomes in each succeeding year a most attractive Mecca to the tourist, philosopher, and the historian.

Barges were in readiness on arrival of the train from Boston, and the many places of historic interest were visited, including the old North Bridge, "Where once the embattled farmers stood, and fired the shot heard round the world;" the Old Cemetery, where many of the Revolutionary heroes were buried; South Bridge, where a detachment of British troops were stationed to prevent reënforcements entering the town.

A meeting was held in the First Parish Church in the forenoon, where a few words of welcome were spoken by Edwin S. Barrett, followed by a report from the President, the Hon, Charles Hicks Saunders, of Cambridge, and an oration by the Hon, Lucius P. Deming, of New The meeting in this historic church was of peculiar interest, as here was held the meeting of the Provincial Congress in October, 1774, presided over by John Hancock as chairman, and Benjamin Lincoln as secretary. Another congress was held in the following April in this same church. But long before this, at three o'clock in the morning of April 19, 1689, the citizensoldiers of this town assembled on the green in front of this First Church, and after religious services by the minister of the church, started for Boston to help put down Sir Edmund Andros. Eighty-six years later to a day and to an hour, on the same spot, in front of the same church, on April 19, 1775 — the world knows what they were gathered for when the midnight ride of Paul Revere called them from their beds. Another period of just eighty-six years had passed, and again the Concord militiamen met on that same green. Again it was eightvsix years to a day and almost to an hour, for it was between three and five in the morning of April 19, 1861, when the Concord boys assembled in answer to a midnight summons, and after prayer by the pastor of the same church, started off in answer to the call of Abraham Lincoln and Governor Andrew.

The Battle Lawn estate of Mr. Barrett, which embraces a portion of the battlefield, was also visited, where some ancestral swords and Revolutionary commissions were exhibited.

Dinner was served in the parlors of the church, and at the close, interesting speeches were delivered, and an original poem was read by the Rev. B. R. Bulkeley, pastor of the church. It was certainly a notable day for all who participated.

At a meeting of the Managers, January 31, 1890, the Registrar reported two hundred and twenty-one names of members on the roll. It was voted to unite with the Society of the Cincinnati and the Loyal Legion, to prevent the unlawful wearing of the badges and rosettes of the three organizations.

The second annual meeting of the Society was held at Lexington, April 19, 1890, President Saunders in the chair. Two hundred and sixty members were reported on the roll. At the election of officers, the Board of last year was reëlected, except that the Hon. Edwin S. Barrett was chosen Vice-President, and Messrs. Henry J. Hosmer, of Concord; Henry A. Willis, of Fitchburg; and Stephen D. Salmon, of Somerville, directors, to fill vacancies.

A public meeting was then held in the Unitarian meeting-house, with an order of exercises as follows:

1. Voluntary on the organ. 2. Prayer. 3. Singing of "America." 4. Address of welcome by the Rev. Edward G. Porter. 5. Response by President Saunders. 6. Explanatory address by the Rev. Carlton A. Staples.

7. Patriotic solo by Miss Minnie Brown. 8. Addresses by the Hon. L. P. Deming, of New Haven, Ct.; General John L. Swift, of Boston; the Hon. L. C. Pumpelly, President of the New Jersey Society; and General Howard L. Porter, of New Hampshire. 9. Singing "The Star-Spangled Banner." 10. Addresses by John H. Morgan, of New York, and the Hon. F. T. Greenhalge, of Lowell. A dinner, with impromptu speaking, closed the occasion.

The Society held its second semi-annual meeting, October 15, 1890, at Plymouth. The members were accompanied by the ladies of their families. At the Samoset House barges were taken for the various points of interest: the new Monument, Forefathers' Rock of 1620. the Soldiers' Monument, the Old Burial Ground, the Cushman Monument, the grave of Governor Bradford, the Court-house. — where were seen old charters dating back to 1620, with the original box in which they were brought from England, and autographs of Governors Bradford and Winslow, of Miles Standish, and many others of the early Pilgrims: the sites of the houses on Levden street, the first street laid out in New England; and, lastly, Pilgrim Hall, where an hour was spent in looking over the relics of the past two hundred years and of the voyage of the "Mayflower." A dinner was served in Lyceum Hall to one hundred and twenty-five guests. After prayer by the chaplain, the Hon. William T. Davis, of Plymouth, made a speech of welcome, full of interesting reminiscences of the early days of the colony. President Saunders replied, saying that it was the object of this Society to maintain and perpetuate the patriotic spirit of the men of the Revolution, and that their children had met to-day in this consecrated spot to gather fresh inspiration for their work. Remarks were also made by Messrs. Churchill, Sleeper, and House, of Plymouth; Osborne, of East Bridgewater; Barrett, of Concord: the Rev. Mr. Staples, of Lexington, and others.

The third annual meeting of the Society was held April 20, 1891, at the Waverley House, Charlestown. About two hundred and fifty members were present. The Registrar reported the membership to be over four hundred, an increase of about one hundred and fifty during the year.

The following officers were then elected for the current year: President, Edwin S. Barrett; Vice-Presidents, Charles M. Green, M.D., Charles H. Joy, and Edward J. Forster; Secretary, A. Scott Harris; Historian, A. A. Stocker, M.D.; Treasurer, John L. Stevenson; Registrar, L. L. Tarbell; Chaplain, the Rev. C. A. Staples; Board of Managers, Charles H. Saunders, Abijah Thompson, Henry A. Willis, Horatio Davis, George A. Cotting, Nathan Appleton (in place of J. F. B. Marshall, deceased), William B. Clarke, Stephen D. Salmon, F. W. Lincoln, Jr., Reuben L. Reed, Howard L. Porter, James M. Barker, George W. Brown, Moses P. Palmer, Henry Guild, William Barnes, Samuel Hall, and Edwin F. Waters.

It was voted that the President and Vice-Presidents appoint the delegates to the National Convention, to be held at Hartford, Ct., April 30, 1891. The assembly then marched to Bunker Hill Monument, under direction of Colonel Stevenson and the escort of the Acton Fife and Drum Corps. They were welcomed by the Hon, F. W. Lincoln, President of the Bunker Hill Monument Association. The assembly then proceeded to Central Hill. Somerville, where they inspected one of the redoubts which formed a part of the American line of intrenchments during the siege of Boston; also to Gun Park, where 8-inch cannon obtained by Act of Congress are mounted on breastworks said to have been erected by General Putnam at the time of the battle of Bunker Hill. Thence they proceeded to Cambridge and to the Washington elm, under the branches of which General Washington assumed command of the Continental army. July 3, 1775. At this spot the Society was welcomed by Mayor Alger, of Cambridge, who pointed out various objects of historical interest. Returning they passed the Longfellow (Craigie) house, used by General Washington as his headquarters in 1775-76. On arrival at the Waverley House the Society dined, and a speech was made by the retiring president. He was followed by Colonel H. N. Fisher, who gave a very interesting account of the battle of Bunker Hill. Other speeches followed from the Rev. Alexander McKenzie and the Rev. Dr. Muzzev (80 years old). President-elect Barrett then thanked the Society for the honor conferred on him. Messrs, Hunnewell, Davis, and others also made remarks, when the meeting was brought to a close.

At a meeting of the Board of Managers, April 24, 1891, a committee was appointed to select a representative from each town to promote the object of the Society and increase its membership.

Messrs. Forster, Greene, Martin, Orcutt, Palmer, Cotting, Porter, President Barrett, ex-President Saunders, and Registrar Tarbell were appointed delegates to attend the annual meeting of the National Society at Hartford, Conn., on the 30th of April.

At a meeting of the Board of Managers, July 30, 1891, the president read an invitation from President Webb, of the National Society of S. A. R., to attend the Bennington celebration on August 19; also one from the Vermont Historical Society and one from the Governor of Vermont. A committee with full powers was appointed to act in the matter, and on the day of the celebration the following-named members of the Society visited Bennington: Edwin S. Barrett, of Concord; George A. Cotting, of Hudson; L. L. Tarbell, of Marlboro'; Nathan D. Harrington, of Somerville; John C. Hovey, of Cambridge; Joseph Hill, of Hyde Park; John C. McClure, of Revere; F. W. Hale, of Rockbottom; Irving Hall, of Somerville: B. S. Moulton, of Charlestown; S. D. Salmon, of Somerville; Moses P. Palmer, of Groton; George O. Smith, of Somerville; H. S. Orne, of Cambridge; R. L. Reed, of Acton; N. L. Kendall, of Boylston; C. D. Elliott, of Somerville; William Russell, of Salem; John M. Rawson, of Douglass; and W. M. Buffum, Nathan Appleton, H. M. Chase, Dr. Charles M. Green, B. W. Warren, H. D. Warren, Edward S. Newton, and Dr. David Thaver, all of Boston.

"The Sons of the American Revolution showed finely in the parade," says the Memorial volume, page 165, "numbering one hundred, including the officers of the National organization and representatives from Rhode Island, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, and Connecticut in carriages." The representatives of the several State societies met at the Soldiers' Home after the ceremonies: the Hon Edwin S. Barrett was elected chairman, and Luther L. Tarbell, secretary. It was voted to prepare a testimonial to be presented to the Vermont Society for the hospitality extended during their visit. President Barrett. in speaking for this Society at the banquet, said: "In the ranks of our Massachusetts Society are two Sons, John McClure and Joseph Hill, whose fathers fought at Bennington, and doubtless there are others here to-day who came to look upon the spot where their fathers battled for liberty. May these monuments rise on every battlefield of the Revolution, and may the good work go on, until all the memorable spots made famous by the American Revolution shall have fitting and lasting emblems of that great struggle for human liberty and the rights of man, and stand as beacon-lights for all the oppressed, to the last syllable of recorded time!"

The third semi-annual meeting was held, October 16, 1891, in Faneuil Hall, Boston. The President and Messrs. Appleton, Green, Lincoln, and Joy were appointed a committee with authority to secure a room in the new Public Library building to be used as the head-quarters of this Society.

An inspection of the objects of historic interest in the hall having been made, the entire company proceeded under escort to visit the various places of interest in the immediate vicinity. Passing Quincy Market, they entered North square and viewed the house which was the residence of Paul Revere when he immortalized himself by his midnight ride to Lexington and Concord, April 18, 1775. Thence they proceeded to Christ Church, Salem street, from whose belfry Sexton Newman hung a lantern as a signal to Paul Revere to start on his famous errand. Passing the house on Prince street used as a hospital by the British after the Bunker Hill battle, they visited the rooms of the Bostonian Society in the Old State House, where they found a very interesting collection of relics of old Boston. After an inspection of the Old South Meeting-house, they returned to Faneuil Hall for dinner, after which President Barrett made an appropriate address, calling attention to the patriotic associations of the hall in which they were assembled. He said that twenty-seven States had now formed societies of the "Sons of the American Revolution," and that in numbers Massachusetts led all the rest. There were in the Society of this State twenty-seven own sons of men who fought in the Revolution. The speaker eloquently set forth the mission of this organization and the various means by which it could aid in preserving patriotic memorials. The Rev. Edward A. Horton made a fervid and patriotic speech. The Rev. B. R. Bulkelev. of Concord, read a poem in tribute to the deeds and inspiration of the fathers.

The Hon. Stephen M. Allen was introduced as President of the Webster Historical Society. His speech was full of patriotic sentiment and reminiscences. Capt. J. Henry Taylor, of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company, made a pithy speech. Letters of regret for non-attendance were read from Private Secretary Halford, on behalf of President Harrison; from the Hon. Henry Cabot Lodge, Mayor Matthews, the Hon. Chauncey M. Depew, and others. Remarks were made by William R. Allen, of Maine; E. C. Staniels, of New Hampshire;

ex-President Saunders, and Nathan Appleton.

President Barrett called attention to Capt. Luke Smith, of Acton, the only living son of a man who fought at Concord Bridge, and he was warmly received. The meeting then adjourned.

At a meeting of the Board of Managers, October 27, 1891, it was voted that all application papers be made in duplicate, the officers of the National Society having suggested that duplicates of applications for membership be sent to the Registrar of the National Society. The President and Messrs. C. M. Green, M.D., and A. Scott Harris were appointed a committee to act on all applications for membership.

It was voted to inscribe on the records of the Society a memorial paper expressive of the high appreciation of this Society of the life, work, and character of the late James Fowle Baldwin Marshall.

At a meeting of the Board of Managers, March 10, 1892, it was voted that this Society use the form of applications for membership adopted by the National Society. Dr. Forster, of the committee on a revision of the Constitution and By-Laws, having reported a new draft, which was accepted, it was voted to send a printed copy of the proposed revision to each member of the Board of Managers for their inspection and criticism, and to secure such suggestions as may, in consequence, be offered.

At a meeting of the Board of Managers, March 17, 1892, the President read a letter from Mr. L. L. Tarbell, tendering his resignation of the office of Registrar. It was voted to accept the resignation. Mr. Nathan Warren was thereupon elected Registrar for the remainder of the year.

After a full discussion of the proposed amendments to the Constitution, it was voted that they be adopted by the Board, and referred to the Society for final action at the next annual meeting. It was then voted that the proposed By-Laws be adopted and proper notice of the same be given in the call for the next annual meeting, so that the Society may take final action.

At a meeting of the Board of Managers, March 31, 1892, the committee on auditing the books and accounts of the late Registrar made a statement to the Board of Managers showing a balance paid to the committee of $134.45. A vote of thanks to Mr. L. L. Tarbell, the late Registrar, was passed, in recognition of his valuable services to the Society.

It was voted that the delegates from this Society to the National Society be instructed to present to the National Society the advisability and necessity of changing the colors of the rosette and ribbon from the red and white, as worn, to buff and blue, the well-recognized "Continental colors," which are not liable to be mistaken for those worn by the members of the Loyal Legion (classes two and three), or by members of the Naval Veterans.

The fourth annual meeting of the Society was held April 19, 1892, in Faneuil Hall, Boston, President Barrett in the chair.

The Treasurer's report showed receipts for the year, $1,540.68; expenditures, $1,353.33; balance on hand, $187.35.

The Registrar reported a total membership of 511; joined during the year, 145; deceased, 12; withdrawn, 15; members who are sons of Revolutionary soldiers, 21.

The Constitution adopted by the Board of Managers was then submitted by Dr. Forster. Mr. Tarbell moved to amend Article IV. of the Constitution by adding the position of chaplain to the list of officers. After discussion the motion prevailed. The Constitution, as amended, was then adopted. The By-Laws, as adopted by the Board of Managers, were then reported to the Society and adopted.

Mr. Clarke, on behalf of the nominating committee, submitted the following list of officers for the ensuing year, and they were elected: President, Edwin Shepard Barrett; Vice-Presidents, Edward Jacob Forster, Henry Cabot Lodge, and Nathan Appleton; Registrar, Nathan Warren; Secretary, William Barrett; Historian, Alfred A. Stocker; Managers, James M. Barker, Benjamin Apthorp Gould, Charles Henry Joy, A. Scott Harris, Henry Guild, Archibald Murray Howe, John Homans, 2d,

The President appointed the following as delegates to the National Convention: Charles M. Green, M.D., Joseph Alba Davis, Nathan Appleton, Howard L. Porter, Edward J. Forster, Nathan Warren, and Henry A. Willis. Alternates: William B. Clarke, Edwin F. Waters, William Barrett, M. E. White, C. H. Saunders, Abijah Thompson, and Moses P. Palmer. The Society then adjourned to the Old South Meeting-house. After prayer by the Chaplain, President Barrett introduced the Rev. Grindall Reynolds, of Concord, as the speaker of the day, who addressed the Society on "The 19th of April, 1775, its relation to the events which preceded it and those which succeeded it."

Mr. Reynolds began by saying that he was a son of the Revolution by virtue of his fighting ancestors, who were present at Lexington and Concord. 19th of April was," he said, "one of the great decisive days of the world's history. There had been uprisings among the American colonists before, but at Lexington and Concord, for the first time, there was armed resistance based upon legal authority. There was not a shot fired, not a step taken on that day, which was not based upon the belief of our fathers that they were acting in accordance with their legal rights, and that King George and General Gage were really rebels against these rights. From the time of the first colonization the grand characteristic of the first settlers was obedience to law. When King Charles sent to the colonists for a return of the patent which had been granted to them, they displayed their allegiance to law by refusing to send it. Later, they arose and put Andros in prison as a purely legal transaction. The history of those times is a story of struggle between the Government and the colonists for what the latter believed to be their legal rights. stubborn courage also of these men is remarkable. allegiance to law and stubborn courage, alone, will not save a people; and so in addition to these we find a sagacity truly wonderful. It was the display of these three qualities which made the day of Lexington and Concord so notable. And they played an equally important part later, at the siege of Boston, and on other critical occasions." Alluding to Washington, the speaker remarked that if there was ever a man who combined in his character these qualities of allegiance to law, desperate courage, and far-sighted wisdom, it was that great leader. "We were apt to mistake his character, and not give him sufficient credit for courage and vigor. Trenton and Princeton showed that back of the Fabian man was the prompt, decisive warrior. These qualities, then. - respect of law, courage, and wisdom, - which had been spoken of, had distinguished the character of our people in their history; and they must be our safeguard in the vears that are to come."

After-dinner speeches were made by President Barrett, the Rev. Grindall Reynolds, the Rev. C. A. Staples, the Rev. Mr. Holmes, the Rev. Mr. George, Nathan Appleton, Dr. Green, Nathan Warren, and others. The attendance was 125.

At a meeting of the Board of Managers, May 9, 1892, it was voted that all sons of Revolutionary soldiers, including present members, be made Honorary Members of the Society, without payment of dues, and that dues of any that may be in arrears be remitted.

A committee was appointed to agitate the matter of making the 19th of April a general holiday, in case Fast Day is abolished.

At a meeting of the Board of Managers, June 8, 1892, a committee, consisting of the President and Messrs.

Clarke and Gould, was appointed to confer with a committee of the Sons of the Revolution.

At a meeting of the Board, September 12, 1892, President Barrett gave an account of the conference between the committees of the Massachusetts S. R. and the Massachusetts S. A. R., on the 29th of July, at which the following resolution was passed: "Resolved, That we earnestly recommend that the societies be consolidated, the details to be arranged by the National and general committees." President Barrett then gave an account of the conference in New York

At a meeting of the Board, October 7, 1892, President Barrett made a report of the result of the meeting in New York between the committees of the Society of S. R. and the Society of S. A. R., regarding their consolidation, in which it was agreed to recommend to the State societies a consolidation under the name of "Sons of the Revolution," with the "Minute-man" as insignia, and a button of buff and blue, the Continental colors.

The fourth semi-annual meeting of the Society was held, October 19, 1892, at Salem. The party numbered upwards of one hundred. Carriages were provided, and the company drove to several places of historic interest, including North bridge, the scene of Colonel Leslie's retreat, February 26, 1775. Many of the public buildings were inspected, including the birthplace of Nathaniel Hawthorne, at No. 21 Union street; the ancient Roger Williams house, corner of North and Essex streets; and the Peabody Academy of Science. Dinner was served in Fraternity Hall. After the dinner, President Barrett made interesting remarks, in which he referred to notable events in the War of Independence. Mayor Rantoul delivered an address replete with historic incidents. giving a cordial welcome to the visitors, and a reference to some local matters, he spoke of the former commerce of Salem, its prominent men, its literary and other institutions, and concluded by inviting the Society to visit the City Hall for the purpose of inspecting the famous Indian deed of sale of the present territory to the Puritan settlers, also the portraits of Governor John Endicott and other noted men.

Professor Edward S. Morse spoke at length of the part Salem had played in commerce, and gave an interesting account of the inception and growth of the Salem Marine Society, and the Peabody Academy of Science, Essex Institute, and other Salem institutions. Major George M. Whipple and Edwin O. Foster, both of Salem, spoke of several matters of local interest. Remarks were also made by Capt. Nathan Appleton, Col. David P. Muzzey, and Col. Daviel S. Lamson.

At a meeting of the Board of Managers, November 21, 1892, the President, Registrar, Historian, and Secretary were appointed to revise and print the doings of the Society since its organization, together with the State and national constitutions, list of members, line of descent, and such other matters as in their judgment may seem for the best interests of the Society, the cost not to exceed five hundred dollars of the Society's funds.

It was voted that the Legislature be petitioned by the officers and managers to substitute the 19th of April in place of Fast Day. In answer to a communication from the President, his Excellency replied as follows:

BOSTON, June 13, 1892.

MR. EDWIN SHEPARD BARRETT, President of the Massachusetts Society of the Sons of the American Revolution, Concord, Mass.

My DEAR SIR: I have received your letter of June 11th recommending that in place of Fast Day the State appoint a holiday on April 19. I find the suggestion meets with quite general approval, and I will with pleasure refer your letter to the Committee on the Judiciary of the Legislature, to whom my special message on the subject has been referred.

Very truly yours,

(Sgd.)

WM. E. RUSSELL.

At a meeting of the Board of Managers, January 23, 1893, the President made a report in regard to the joint meeting of the committees of the two National societies in New York, December 22, 1892. It was voted to call a special meeting of the Massachusetts Society of the Sons of the American Revolution on February 8, to choose delegates to the joint convention of the two national societies to be held in New York, February 16, the place to be left with the President and Registrar.

It was voted that Mr. Howe appear before the Judiciary Committee of the Legislature on the 25th instant to represent the Society in favor of the establishment of the 19th day of April as a legal holiday.

It was voted that the notices for the special meeting of the Society contain the proposition for a union of the two national societies to be acted upon by the congress of the two societies in New York; and also a slip in aid of the petition for the establishment of the 19th of April as a legal holiday, to be signed and returned by the members, if deemed advisable by the Board of Managers.

A special meeting of the Society was held according to notice, February 8, 1893, in Wesleyan Hall, Boston, President Barrett in the chair. The President read the call of the National Society and the report of the joint committee on proposed union of the S. A. R. and the S. R., including the proposed new Constitution, and signatures of the joint committees.

Mr. Clarke offered the following motion:

Voted, That the Board of Managers be empowered to arrange all details for a union with the Society of the Sons of the Revolution, our sister society, and report the plan to this Society for their action, providing the result of the meeting of the two societies is favorable to union. The motion was adopted.

The President, under authority, appointed the following delegates to the joint congress in New York:

Delegates: Edwin Shepard Barrett, Edward Jacob

Forster, Nathan Appleton, Charles M. Green, Edwin Forbes Waters, William Butler Clarke, William D. Richards, Henry A. Willis.

Alternates: John Quincy Bradish, Moses P. Palmer, Joseph Alba Davis, Richard Fay Barrett, Daniel S. Lamson, Henry Cabot Lodge, Allan Rogers, Robert A. Blood.

It was voted to request the towns to suitably mark the graves of all Revolutionary soldiers. Messrs. Staples, Reed, Saunders, Palmer, Warren, Appleton, and Dudley were appointed a committee on the matter.

About one hundred and fifty members were present at the meeting.

At a meeting of the Board of Managers, February 20, 1893, the President made a report of the failure of the convention of the two societies, at their meeting in New York, to adopt a form of union. On motion of Dr. Homans, a resolution of regret was adopted, with a vote of thanks to the delegates from this Society.

Mr. Edwin F. Waters was added to the Committee on Publication and Printing.

The fifth annual meeting of the Society was held at Faneuil Hall, Boston, April 19, 1893, and was called to order by the President. In the absence of the Secretary, S. Arthur Bent was chosen secretary pro tempore. President made his second annual report, and reports the Registrar, Treasurer, and were received from Auditing Committee, which were accepted and placed on The report of the Committee on Memorial Tablets was presented by the chairman, the Rev. C. A. Staples, recommending that plans be secured for an appropriate tablet of iron or bronze for marking the graves of Revolutionary soldiers in this State, and that the Legislature be petitioned to give each town and city permission to appropriate money to defray the expense of such tablets. The report was accepted and the committee continued, with the addition of the President and Historian, and with power to select a design in metal, iron or bronze. The Society then elected officers for the ensuing year, a list of which will be found elsewhere. The Board of Managers was empowered to select the delegates to the conventions at New York and Chicago.

The Society then adjourned to the American House for dinner, at the conclusion of which President Barrett offered his congratulations and welcome to the members present. The principal address was made by the Rev. Edward G. Porter, who said:

You have done well to observe this "ever-memorable day" as the time for holding your annual meeting.

More and more, as the years go by, we see the significance of the 19th of April in our history. Other dates in the long period of the Revolutionary War mark greater military movements, but it was the day at Lexington and Concord that first stirred the hearts of the patriots and brought them to the high resolve of immediate and forcible resistance.

All that followed may be traced directly to the doings of Pitcairn and Parker, of Parsons and Buttrick, of Percy and Warren and Revere and the others — many others — whose names will forever be associated with the momentous struggle which you commemorate by your festival to-day.

And our place of meeting is especially appropriate, as this hotel stands upon the site of Dr. Warren's house, and not far from the Green Dragon Tavern, where the Revolution was "hatched."

The old North End has undergone many changes in recent years, and the fathers would hardly recognize it now. But you will be glad to know that through the influence of our public schools, the children of the stranger, now swarming in these old haunts, are well indoctrinated in the lessons of American patriotism. I am invited to address several hundred of them at the North End to-night upon the day we celebrate, and I know, from previous experience, that I shall have an attentive and enthusiastic audience, though perhaps not a single one among them will be of New England lineage.

Here we have a field, it seems to me, for this Society to cultivate by offering prizes for proficiency in American historical studies, especially, if you please, those connected with the war for independence. You can create good patriots, believe me, out of these young Italians, and Poles, and Portuguese. They are great believers in America, already. They like their new inheritance. They are here to stay; and many of them know the main facts of our national history as well as the scholars on the Back Bay or elsewhere.

Do you know, Mr. President, that the attention of the world is being drawn more and more to our country and to the institutions we have planted here? In a recent journey through Europe and the East, I examined the text-books used in the schools, and found that a much larger space was given to our republic than formerly. In the universities of India, Hindu students are writing English essays upon the significance of 1775 in the growth of political freedom; and some of them told me they found no chapter in history more inspiring and instructive.

In Australia I saw busts of Washington and Franklin, and also framed copies of our Declaration of Independence, with Hancock's famous signature, exhibited in public buildings. And in Japan there is such eagerness to know all about us that I was repeatedly asked by teachers and students in colleges and normal schools to address them upon topics related to our government, our educational system, our industries, our railroads, etc.

At Kyoto I was waited upon by a committee of the Doshisha University — founded by the lamented Neesima — and requested to give a lecture upon the Battle of Lexington. "But what do you know of the Battle of Lexington?" I said. "Oh!" they replied, "Mr. Neesima and the missimanis have told us about it, and we hear that Lexington is your home." So I yielded to their request, and to my surprise I found the hall filled to overflowing with an audience, I was told, of nearly a thousand students, many of them taking notes briskly, as I spoke through an interpreter, and often interrupting me with applause. The next morning the little Japanese newspapers had full reports of the lecture, and I received many courtesies as a result of the effort.

The reason of this is evident. Those far-away people are eager for freedom. They are waking up from the lethargy and bondage of the traditions, and looking to us and to our history for safe examples in their struggles for liberty.

You, gentlemen, as members of this Society, have assumed a responsibility which I know you are glad to recognize. You have made yourselves, in an important sense, the custodians of some of our most valued historical and political truths. I ask you now to disseminate them—here in our city and as far as may be, throughout the country and the world.

The social and festive character of such a meeting as this is delightful and appropriate. Perhaps you will see your way clear to add something in the near future for the good of mankind, by erecting tablets, decorating Revolutionary graves, offering medals, or establishing scholarships which shall directly illustrate and enforce the mighty doctrines set forth on a certain 19th of April by a few Middlesex farmers on Lexington green and at Concord bridge.

Other speakers were Mr. Hooper, of Bridgewater, who saw and talked with Lafayette; Levi S. Gould, S. Arthur Bent, Col. Daniel S. Lamson, the Hon. Moses P. Palmer, Luke Smith, the sole surviving son of a minute-man of '75, the Rev. C. A. Staples, Signor Brindisi, the Italian consul. and others.

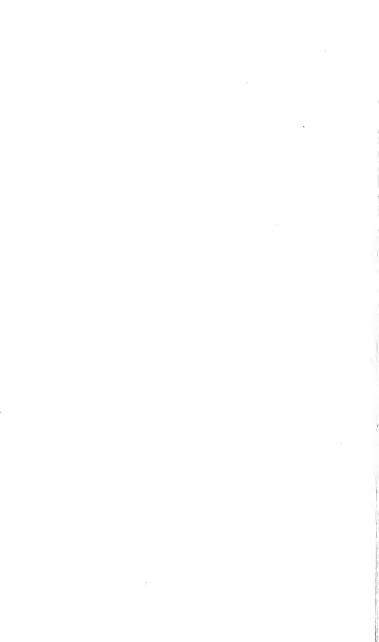

At a meeting of the Board of Managers, May 1, 1893, Messrs. Bent, Warren, and Waters were appointed a Committee on Publication, to which the President was added. At a meeting on May 15, it was voted that the cities and towns of the Commonwealth be requested on Memorial Day, May 30, to decorate the graves of Revolutionary soldiers with a flag marked "S. A. R." The appointment of delegates to New York and Chicago was left to the President and Registrar. In response to the invitation of the Managers, the graves of Revolutionary heroes were decorated in the towns of Concord, Lexington, Acton, Weston, Brookline, Marblehead, Plymouth, Framingham, South Framingham, and elsewhere.

The General Society of the Cincinnati, on the occasion of its Triennial Congress, in Boston, in June last, devoted a day to Lexington and Concord, under the guidance of a committee from this Society. About one hundred members of the Congress participated in the excursion. In Lexington they were in charge of the chaplain, the Rev. Carlton A. Staples, and the Rev. Edward G. Porter. gentlemen thoroughly familiar with that historic town. and, through their attention, the guests were much delighted with their visit. The Congress held a business meeting in the Town Hall, and afterwards partook of a generous lunch, to which the committee were invited. After lunch the Cincinnati took carriages, and, under the guidance of the President and Secretary of this Society, were driven over the old British road, six miles, to Concord. The many interesting points in this town were visited, and a long halt was made at the Old North Bridge. "where the shot was fired heard round the world," and where French's noble statue of the "Minute-man" charms the beholder. Afterward a call was made at Battle Lawn, the home of President Barrett, whose grounds embrace a part of the battlefield, where old Revolutionary commissions, swords, and powder-horns were shown, and light refreshments served. The day was one of the rarest of June days, and to most of the visitors, coming from many States, it was their first look at the battlefields of Massachusetts. It was to the sister patriotic society a notable occasion, and they expressed in the most kindly terms their sincere thanks for the attention given them by the committee from this Society.

SEAL AND BADGE.

INSIGNIA.

SEAL.

The Seals of the National and State Societies are one and seven-eighths of an inch in diameter, and consist of the figure of a Minute-man standing by the side of a plough, surrounded by thirteen stars; the whole encircled by a band three-eighths of an inch wide, upon which in raised letters is the name of the Society, with the date of organization.

THE BADGE.

DESCRIPTION. — Obverse: A silver cross of four arms and eight points, of the same size as the Chevalier's Cross of the French Legion of Honor, with white enamelled arms. In the centre is a gold medallion bust of George Washington in profile, surrounded by a ribbon in blue enamel, on which is the motto of the Society in gold letters: "Libertas et Patria." Between the medallion and the points of the cross is a laurel wreath in green enamel. Reverse: Like the obverse; the medallion, however, has the figure of a Minute-man, surrounded by a ribbon in blue enamel, containing in gold letters the words, "Sons of the American Revolution." The cross is surmounted by an eagle in gold or silver, suspended by a ribbon of blue silk with white edges; blue being the color of the uniforms of Washington's staff.

The Cross is a reproduction of the emblem of the French Order of St. Louis, with certain changes, and was adopted to commemorate the assistance given to the Colonies by Louis XVI., Grand Master of that Order. The medallion, containing the head of Washington and the figure of the Minute-man, is fitly placed upon a cross of such an origin and associations.

A vote of two-thirds of those present shall be necessary to their adoption.

THE MARKER OF REVOLUTIONARY GRAVES.

The subject of identifying and marking the graves of Revolutionary soldiers has for some time engaged the attention of this society. At the last annual meeting the committee previously appointed was authorized to procure designs for a tablet of iron or bronze, to be placed at the head of the graves of soldiers of the Revolution, within the limits of this Commonwealth. At the semiannual meeting held in Marblehead on the 19th of October, 1803, the design of an iron marker presented by the committee was accepted, and a sketch of it is given on the previous page. At the top of the rod is the cross of St. Louis one foot in diameter, being the ensign or badge of the society, with the figure of the Concord minute-man, instead of the head of Washington. Each arm of the cross contains a letter of the inscription, "S.A.R." (Soldier of the American Revolution), the lower arm having the date, "1775." A socket can be attached to the rod to hold a bouquet of flowers, to be placed in it on Memorial day, when it is hoped all graves of Revolutionary soldiers and sailors will be decorated by the pious hands of their descendants or by the posts of the Grand Army of the Republic.

At the semi-annual meeting at Marblehead, the managers were authorized to purchase fifty of these markers, to be given to such towns as may wish to inspect them with a view to their adoption.

The markers in iron cost one dollar each, and are manufactured by M. D. Jones & Co., 76 Washington street, Boston, to whom all orders should be sent.

A marker in bronze, of finer workmanship, but of similar design, will be furnished by the same firm.

At the last annual meeting, the committee reported in favor of petitioning the next legislature that towns and cities may be authorized to appropriate money to defray the cost of these markers. Such petitions will be prepared in proper time.

Members of the society and all persons interested in this praiseworthy object are urgently requested to bring it before the authorities of towns and cities, and to spare no efforts that the graves of our Revolutionary patriots, now often neglected and unmarked, may be the objects of reverent care, and receive each year the tribute of a grateful people.

INFORMATION.

Persons eligible for membership in the Massachusetts Society can obtain the necessary information concerning their Revolutionary ancestors at the office of the Secretary of State, in the State House, Boston. The clerks in the office will aid an applicant in his research, and for a fee of three dollars a certificate will be given, signed by the Secretary of State, detailing the ancestor's service.

If the ancestor was a pensioner, application can be made directly to the Pension Office in Washington for a certificate, and this evidence is conclusive. No charge is made unless for extraordinary services.

The Registrar, Nathan Warren, Equitable Building, Boston, will furnish information to those wishing to become members of the Society.

Notices of corrections or additions to the record of members in the Membership Roll of this volume may be sent to the Historian of the Society, S. Arthur Bent, Old State House, Boston, for insertion in subsequent editions.

THE HISTORY OF THE SOCIETY FROM OCTOBER, 1893.

THE fall field-day of the Society for 1893 was held at Marblehead on the 19th of October, a special train leaving the Eastern depot at 9:45 A.M., carrying one hundred members and ladies. On arriving at this ancient and historic town, the Society found the town clerk and selectmen awaiting them, and taking barges, visited the spots particularly associated with the Revolution; as the monument erected to the memory of Captain James Mugford, the old fort, the powder-house, the burying-ground. St. Michael's Church, and the homes of General Glover, Colonel Lee, Colonel Orne, and Captain Mugford - the interesting features of which were duly pointed out by the gentlemen who had kindly volunteered their services. Several members of the party also visited Mrs. Richard Lyons, a granddaughter of John Roads Russell, one of the members of Glover's regiment, whose profile was cut on the statue dedicated at Trenton this day, as one of the figures representing the part Massachusetts took in the campaign of "the Jerseys."

At the conclusion of the drive, which had occupied nearly three hours, a meeting of the Society was held in Abbot Hall, Dr. E. J. Forster, the first vice-president, in the chair; S. Arthur Bent acting as secretary pro tem. The Rev. C. A. Staples, chairman of the committee on a marker of Revolutionary graves, presented the design which was printed and described in the book of the Society for 1893. On motion of Capt. Nathan Appleton, the design was accepted. It was voted that fifty such markers be purchased by the Society, to be given to towns applying for them for examination and adoption.

Captain Appleton, the third vice-president, presided at the collation which was then served, and introduced the speakers, all of whom "were to the manner born." The Hon, James H. Gregory, who during the forenoon had acted as the spokesman of the local committee, referred at length to the history of Marblehead in the Revolution and of the services of her sons by land and sea, saving that she had more men on the ocean than on land during that struggle, and that it was on account of the privateersmen that the merchants of England asked for a cessation of hostilities. A letter was then read from the Hon. Samuel Roads, Jr., the historian of Marblehead, who had been invited to address the Society upon "Marblehead in the Revolution." Unable to be present, he sent a brief sketch of Marblehead in the war, speaking particularly of the career of Gen. John Glover and of the celebration at that moment in Trenton, New Jersey. It was announced that the following telegram had been sent to the presiding officer: "The Massachusetts Society of the Sons of the American Revolution assembled this day at Marblehead, the home of Glover and his marine regiment, send greetings to their compatriots at Trenton, and congratulations on the glorious anniversary they are celebrating." Short speeches, mainly referring to the part Marblehead had taken in the Revolution, were made by Charles H. Litchman, Capt. Knott V. Martin. who commanded one of the first companies to report at Faneuil Hall in the War of the Rebellion, and the Rev. Messrs, Priest and Sleeper. The committee who prepared this very successful field-day were Messrs. Warren, Appleton, Bent, Kimball, and A. W. Clark.

At the meeting of the Board of Managers on the 9th of November, it was voted to give one copy of the book of the Society, then ready for distribution, to all members who had paid their dues, and that the price of extra copies to members be two dollars and the postage. On motion of Dr. Forster, it was voted that the Board of Managers present a petition to the Legislature, asking that the 19th of April be substituted for Fast Day as a legal holiday.

At the meeting of the managers on the 15th of January, 1894, the Committee on Publication received the thanks of the Board for the manner in which they had prepared the book of the Society. Messrs. Warren, Appleton, and Bent were appointed a press committee. Messrs. Howe, Lodge, and Lamson were appointed a committee to investigate the best means of procuring the publication of the Revolutionary documents now at Washington. It was voted that the president, with such others as may desire to accompany him, appear before the Judiciary Committee of the Legislature to advocate the substitution of the 19th of April for Fast Day as a legal holiday.

At the meeting of the managers on the 31st of March, it was voted to hold the sixth annual meeting at Concord, and the president, secretary, registrar, historian, and Mr. Herbert W. Kimball were appointed a committee of arrangements. The secretary was instructed to communicate to the families of the late Rev. Jonas Bowen Clarke and James Barr Curwen the sympathy of the Society in the death of those valued members.

The sixth annual meeting of the Society was held at Concord on Thursday, the 19th of April, 1894, to celebrate the appointment of that day as a legal holiday in place of Fast Day, to which this Society had so materially contributed. Two cars on the nine o'clock express train to Concord were reserved for members of the Society and their guests, and nearly two hundred gentlemen took part in the anniversary exercises, which were of the most successful and enthusiastic character.

On arriving at Concord, barges were taken for "Battle Lawn," the residence of the president of the Society, who had thrown open his house and grounds, that the Society might from so advantageous a position witness the sham fight on the historic battlefield of the "North Bridge." Enveloped in the smoke of this bloodless carnage, the members enjoyed President Barrett's generous hospitality, then slowly moved in the barges past the bridge, with its statue and monument, past "the Old Manse," and through the densely crowded streets. lined with substantial residences handsomely decorated for the occasion, to the Unitarian church, in which the business meeting and the collation were to be held. was very gratifying to the Society to observe in the old burying-ground the graves of many Revolutionary soldiers honored with the newly adopted marker, which to the number of seventy-five had been put in position the day before by our fellow-members resident in Concord.

The sixth annual meeting was called to order at noon by President Barrett, who proceeded, after the call of the meeting had been read by the secretary, to deliver his annual address, as follows:

Members of the Society of the Sons of the American Revolution:

In fixing upon the place for holding the sixth annual meeting of our Society, your Board of Managers decided that inasmuch as Concord had never received that honor, it would be particularly appropriate on this one hundred and nineteenth anniversary of the "Concord Fight" to hold its meeting here, and in this historic meeting-house, where the Provincial Congress had held its sessions, the last one on the 18th of April, the day before the battle — one hundred and nineteen years ago yesterday. Where could there be a more appropriate place for the meeting of a society whose aim is purely patriotic; whose object is to keep alive the memory and deeds of our Revolutionary ancestors, and to hand down to our children's children the record of their heroic services?

Your Board of Managers have held nine meetings during the year, and have faithfully and carefully considered the interests of the Society, and I am happy to report that our work in a practical way has exceeded that of any previous year. The issue of the Society's sketch book has proved very satisfactory to our members, and received many compliments from other State societies, and has proved a valuable addition to Revolutionary annals. I would recommend that from time to time we publish additional volumes.

The marker, adopted by the Society at its meeting in Marblehead, on the 19th of October last, to mark the graves of Revolutionary heroes, is of handsome design and very creditable to the committee having the matter in charge, and I trust will be very generally adopted by other State societies. Some have already signified their intention to use it. The Act of 1884. Chapter 42, gives authority to towns to grant and vote money for this memorial purpose, and your Board of Managers voted to notify towns of the existence of this law, and to ask the selectmen to bring the matter before their respective towns: however, the notices were too late for many towns who held their meetings early, and but few towns moved in the matter. Lexington. Acton, and Weston appropriated money for this purpose, and to-day these towns will mark the graves of their Revolutionary heroes with the marker of this Society. I would urge this work upon the patriotic members of our Society, and all who are interested. It is a great and noble design to mark these graves before their locality is lost, but it requires the persistent effort of public-spirited and patriotic men to carry out a purely sentimental work. Where towns refuse to appropriate money for this purpose, the money can be easily raised by subscription, or, failing in that, I would recommend that our Society supply the markers on application of the selectmen of the town, or some responsible person who takes an interest in this patriotic work. Another important matter has engaged the attention of your Society the past two years, - the abolition of Fast Day, and, in the place of this, establishing the 19th of April as a legal holiday. We were the first society to move publicly in this matter. May 9, 1892, your Board of Managers passed a vote that a committee of thirteen be appointed to agitate the matter, of which Capt. Nathan Appleton was chairman. On June 8, 1892, a petition was presented to His Excellency Governor Russell, signed by the officers of this Society, asking for the establishment of the 19th of April as a legal holiday. The Governor's reply was received on the 13th of June, addressed to your president, saying he had referred the matter to the judiciary committee, with his approval. A bill was brought in last year, but failed of its final passage. We again this year pressed the matter upon Governor Greenhalge, who earnestly urged it in his inaugural address to the Legislature, and a committee from this Society, consisting of the president, Messrs. Staples, Howe, and Parker, of the Board of Managers, appeared before the judiciary committee on January 30, 1893, and earnestly advocated the abolition of Fast Day and the substitution of the 19th of April as a legal holiday. Other societies and individuals also pressed this matter upon the attention of the judiciary committee, notably the Lexington Historical Society. The date of our organization was on the 19th of April, 1889, and certainly the day is fruitful enough in historic memories to warrant its being desired as a public holiday by the people of Massachusetts.

On Memorial Day many of the towns decorated the graves of Revolutionary soldiers with the American flag with the letters S. A. R., in accordance with a vote of the Board of Managers, and I trust this custom will be further extended through all the towns. It has also been voted by the Board to recommend that tablets bearing the names of Revolutionary soldiers be placed in town halls or other conspicuous places.

The congress of the National Society was held in Chicago, June 16th and 17th, and our Society was represented by its delegates.

A great interest is being aroused in matters pertaining to the Revolution. New patriotic societies are being formed and old ones strengthened, all tending to foster the patriotism of the people, the preservation of Revolutionary archives, and the marking of historic places.

The annual reports of the registrar, Nathan Warren; the treasurer, Dr. Charles M. Green; and the historian, S. Arthur Bent,—were read, accepted, and ordered placed on file. The report of the registrar showed a membership of four hundred and thirty-nine, of whom nineteen were Sons of Revolutionary soldiers. Fifty-four were added during the year. The report of the treasurer gave the receipts to have been $1,445.32, and the expenditures $1,385.31. The necrology of the year reported by the historian included the names of some of the oldest and most valued members of the Society — twelve in all — including two members of the Board of Managers: James B. Curwen and Edwin F. Waters.

The following delegates and alternates to the convention of the National Society, at Washington, on the 30th inst., were then elected: Delegates. — The Hon. Henry Cabot Lodge, Edwin S. Barrett, Nathan Appleton, Levi S. Gould, Charles M. Green, M.D., Herbert L. Burrell, M.D. Alternates. — Edward J. Forster, M.D., the Hon. William A. Richardson, William D. Richards, Richard F. Barrett, Thomas S. Phelps, Robert A. Blood, Alfred S. Roe, Allan Rogers.

Mr. Archibald M. Howe offered the following resolution, which was adopted:

That it is the opinion of the Massachusetts Society, S. A. R., that it is not expedient at this time to build a national building in Washington.

Mr. William B. Clarke reported from the nominating committee a list of officers for the ensuing year, which will be found elsewhere.

On motion of Mr. A. S. Harris, it was voted that the secretary cast one ballot for the Society, and the gentlemen nominated were declared elected.

Mr. Archibald M. Howe declined to serve longer on the Board of Managers, and his resignation was laid upon the table.

Captain Appleton offered a resolution, which was adopted, suggesting to the City Government of Boston the propriety of marking the graves of Revolutionary soldiers in the city cemeteries.

A vote of thanks was given to the retiring registrar and secretary, and to the president for his entertainment of the Society that morning.

The following committee was appointed to nominate officers for the ensuing year: The Hon. Charles H. Saunders, Allan Rogers, the Rev. Charles L. Hutchins, Nathan Warren, Henry A. Willis.

At one o'clock the company, now about two hundred in number, went to the vestry, where dinner was served. A few ladies there augmented the gathering. At the raised table with President Barrett sat Gen. John C. Breckinridge, U. S. A., president of the District of Columbia Society; the Hon. Winslow Warren, Collector of the Port of Boston; the Hon. Mellen Chamberlain, of Chelsea; the Rev. Grindall Reynolds, secretary of the American Unitarian Association; Curtis Guild, Jr., of Boston; Dr. Charles M. Green, of Boston; the Hon. Charles H. Saunders, ex-Mayor of Cambridge; Capt. Nathan Appleton, of Boston; and Judge John S. Keyes, of Concord.

Immediately after dinner the president rose and read letters regretting their absence from Governor Greenhalge, the Hon. Henry Cabot Lodge, the Hon. Chauncy M. Depew, the Hon. William A. Bancroft, the Hon. J. Q. A. Brackett, the Hon. Roger Wolcott, Charles F. Trumbull, secretary of the Connecticut society, and Henry Hall, of the New York "Tribune."

Then, after a few words of welcome, President Barrett introduced the Hon. Winslow Warren, president of the Society of the Cincinnati, who said:

It is just about a year ago that, in company with delegates to the triennial of the Society of the Cincinnati, I visited your historic town. We were kindly received by the president of your Society, and I now take the opportunity to thank him for the reception on behalf of our society. The visit to him was memorable. In his company were two delegates, once Confederates, and there was a sort of revival of the Revolutionary feelings.

Mr. Warren read letters pertaining to the events of the Revolutionary period, one of which was written by his grandfather, a member of the Provincial Congress, who wrote:

"I hope one thing will follow another till America shall appear before the whole world."

But, said the speaker, turn to the town of Dedham. On the day of the fight at Concord a messenger was despatched to Dedham. He reached the town, gave the alarm, and four military companies mustered in the different parishes,—three hundred men out of a population of two thousand,—so that practically every able-bodied man of Dedham started for Concord on that day. Twenty-three towns, at least, are known to have taken part in the fighting before the astonished and worn-out British soldiers reached the town of Boston. Such are the scenes which this day, now wisely made a holiday, recalls. To you is handed down a great trust,—to keep alive the spirit of the Revolution. As a member of an older society, I rejoice in your new-found strength.

There cannot be too many of them to perpetuate these memories, if they keep well in mind the purposes of their organization. They are select bodies, in the best sense of the word, because they represent the highest aspirations and the holiest associations of American freemen. To them is given in charge especially to spread the feeling of true Americanism, not in any party or proscriptive way, but that Americanism which stands for high principle, for sound methods, and for democracy founded upon the virtues of its people. There is need of it, gentlemen. The future of America is not clear. We are working out a great principle, but are surrounded with dangerous quicksands, and for our success as a nation is needed all the patriotism and all the wisdom that a study of the doings of the fathers of the republic can possibly furnish. Time was when our people of Massachusetts were of one blood. have been absorbing new elements, many of which are strange and alien to our form of government; and whether or not we can safely assimilate these new elements depends largely upon the virtue and constancy and labor of men who can feel in all its intensity the real meaning of our Revolution. Gatherings like these are pleasant to see, and they are useful in bringing together men of common ancestry and common purpose; but the test is in the evidence you may furnish in your daily work, in your political action, in your performance of ordinary duties of American citizenship, of your appreciation of the responsibility your glorious descent imposes on you all. See to it, gentlemen, that these societies have a real meaning; that each and all of you shall illustrate, in his own way, the principles of those days which cemented this union of States; that this republic shall grow in wisdom with its growth in power, and the future shall be securely based upon the immutable idea of justice to all men and a freedom which shall not degenerate into a wild license of democracy.

The president then introduced Gen. Joseph C. Breckinridge, of Washington, who said:

Ladies of this Grand old Commonwealth, Men of Massachusetts, Mr. President, and Compatriots all:

I would that the choice had fallen upon some one more skilled in the art of oratory for an occasion like this, instead of upon a simple soldier, when another holy day is added to the calendar of liberty, and the very choicest flower of Southern sympathy should be brought and presented to such an audience, — selected from among those in whose veins the fires of patriotism, as well as the blood of those early martyrs, must throb with an undying instinct for freedom; and the ultimate results of that spring day's struggle now are to be measured by faith and prophecy, as well as by the priceless glories that already crowd upon our beloved country.

This is a simple bit of scenery we have here, familiar in every detail: and what plain, matter-of-fact people were the actors here less than a century and a score of years ago. One must enjoy the very sight of such a scene as the heart sings with the radiant delights of the season. They were the country folk of their day, and unwittingly they bore in their hardy hands the highest hopes of human destiny; and they were attending to nobody's business except their own; though they gave all they had, their lives, and apparently hopelessly; but it was in favor of one of those few causes that are superior to human life; and who among us to-day (as so many here present have) would not glory to have our names numbered among "those few immortal ones who are not born to die." It was here that glory waited them; that purest glory that cannot be gained by seeking, but must come graciously, unsought, to crown a duty nobly done without fear, favor, or hope of reward. "Aye, there's the rub." It is just here we touch the very spirit's throne of this imperious scene; the throne from which it conquers the rapt and reverent attention of all mankind. The men called Americans who died here were the proto-martyrs of a cult and nation which unfalteringly bears aloft a rare devotion to "liberty with law," and finds no sacrifice too great, nor service too arduous, in the name they have placed next to that "Name which is above every name and to which every knee shall bow." Those who have died for this cause and country may have "builded better than they knew," but they knew they did all they could. And with what they did we are content. To us is given their torch of truth, to carry it onward and keep its flame alight.

An Oriental might well exclaim to us: "Loose the sandals from off thy feet, for the place whereon thou standest is holy ground." Certainly it is not less holy because it is homely and wholly our own. There are some things to which the men of this cold climate, and perhaps colder generation, are still devoted; and one thing they love, is liberty, and this is its shrine, "where loval hearts, and true, stand ever in the light," and those who died are blest; here the fires of freedom are perpetual, and can never fail while such hearts as these are true to God and native land. Where to find peace for the soul we know, and we seek such holy peace for both soul and body as may be honorably found; but we have never found "life so dear, nor peace so sweet, as to be purchased at the price of chains and slavery." So said our fathers, and so say we; to this, these fields in all their calm delight cry aloud in proof, to which the heavens and earth reecho now forever! This nation lives for no other cause, and our children are as ready as our fathers were, to die for it. As freedom is right, we adhere to it. Those who love monarchs are free to follow them. There is no neutral host, for those who are not against us are for us. The narrow bridge between life and death is here. And if man must die by the hand of his fellowman, is there any better place than this or better cause?

As Greece was to the Hellenes, so New England now centres all America. Old Syracuse, on the island of Sicily, might seem pretentious and engage the attention of the world, and challenge with Hiero and Archimedes comparison with any potentate or philosopher; or Ephesus, with its Diana, and with artists and wealth excelling all other nations, might claim preëminence for the nonce; but the mind of man gets new birth from Athens only; from thence is our renaissance, and even Athens' incomparable glory is condensed into a century and a score of years, —a term as short as our great national life. To men of our race and day the broad Atlantic is no more than was the Mediterranean to those old Greeks of mighty mind. It is from them alone our fathers took their precedents; and on this field can we dare ask if they could find "copy now for men of nobler blood and teach them how to war"?

The farmers and artisans who fought here on the day we celebrate were the vanguard of a mighty host, and steadily since that day sons of New England have led the van in arts, in song, in arms, in oratory, in literature, in industry, in thrift, "in all the qualities that do become a man," — and there has been no measure to their success. In conscience, as in labor, they are supreme. Hence, as this imperial republic grew, their "power and potency" also had full growth, until to-day the Pleiades, in their sweet influences, are not more glorious in the heavens than the sister stars of New England's galaxy in the starry union of Old Glory, "with freedom's banner floating o'er us." The universal Thanksgiving Day, Forefathers' Day, and now Patriots' Day, are added to the other customs which have become national to their extremest details, and indicate how we are all led willing captives to the men of Massachusetts. To them, knowing full well the unheralded merits in leadership and unquestioned quality and valor of the proud men of my own clime. I come from my Southern home to say, as to men of equal merit: All hail, most worthy men; Sons of liberty, all hail! and in token true I offer you my hand and heart to-day.

The third speaker was the Rev. Grindall Reynolds, of Concord, who dwelt briefly on the lessons of the day, and said that the prosperity, intelligence, and self-respect shown by the people who watched the mock battle today was wrought out by the men who fought at the bridge one hundred and nineteen years ago.

The Hon. Mellen Chamberlain spoke substantially as follows:

It is a great privilege, as I gratefully think, to join with the Sons of the American Revolution, though not of their number, in the celebration of the 19th of April, 1775. That was indeed a notable day; a day forever memorable by events of great import to that age and people, and which seems likely to affect the political condition of no inconsiderable part of the human race. It was neither unexpected nor unprepared for. The Provincial Congress, adjourned from Salem, met at Concord. October II. 1774. That body—the ablest political body, as I think, that ever sat in Massachusetts - met the impending crisis with a prescience, wisdom, and practical skill never surpassed and seldom equalled by any similar body of men known to me. Among its members were Hancock, Adams, the Warrens, Hawley, Gerry, Paine, and many others, among whom were those afterward distinguished in the field, in legislative bodies, or in the highest executive offices. And this Provincial Congress, here in the winter of 1774-5, devised those measures which, mainly through the influence of Adams, Gerry, Hancock, and Paine, were adopted the next spring by the Continental Congress at Philadelphia; and I think it no exaggeration to say that what was done in the little town of Concord made possible what was done on the wider theatre of continental affairs. This is apparent to every one who reads the journals of both bodies. And so I think this edifice in which the Provincial Congress sat, and in which we are now sitting, - sacred alike to liberty and religion, - where the foundation of independence was laid, should be no less dear, to New England at least, than that hall in Philadelphia in which independence was declared July 4, 1776.

Of the events of April 19, 1775, I need say but little. They have passed into history. Every year they are recounted in our public journals, and are now household words. I ask rather what these events meant for the colonists at the time; what they have since meant, and what they may mean for future ages? On the first question I have some direct, authentic intelligence, derived from an actor in those scenes. When intelligence of the affair at Lexington on the morning of the 19th reached Danvers, the minute-men there, under the lead of Capt. Gideon Foster, made that memorable march, or run, rather, of sixteen miles in four hours. They struck Percy's flying column at West Brave, but incautious in flanking the redcoats, Cambridge. they were flanked themselves, and badly pinched, leaving seven dead, two wounded, and one missing. Among those who escaped was Levi Preston, afterward Captain Preston. When I was about twenty-one, and Captain Preston about ninety-one, I interviewed him in his own house as to what he did and thought sixty-seven years before, on the 10th of April, 1775, and now fifty-two years later, I make my report, a little belated, perhaps, but I trust not too late for the morning papers. With an assurance passing even that of the modern interviewer, I began: "Captain Preston, what made you go to the Concord fight?" The old man, bowed with the weight of fourscore years and ten, raised himself upright, and turning to me said: "What did I go for?" — "Yes," I replied. "My histories all tell me you men of the Revolution took up arms against 'intolerable oppression.' What was it?"—"Oppression? I didn't feel any that I know of."—"Were you not oppressed by the Stamp Act?"—"I never saw any stamps, and I always understood that none were ever sold." — "Well, what about the tea tax?" — "Tea tax? I never drank a drop of the stuff: the boys threw it all overboard." - "But I suppose you had been reading Harrington, Sidney, and Locke about the eternal principles of liberty"? - "I never heard of those men. The only books we had were the Bible. the catechism, Watts's psalms and hymns, and the almanac."— "Well, then, what was the matter? And what did you mean in going to the fight?" - "Young man, what we meant in fighting the British was this: We always had been free, and we meant to be free always."

And that, gentlemen, is the ultimate philosophy of the American Revolution. It correctly assigns the underlying, pervasive cause; it explains and accounts for the uprising of the whole country, with its varied interests, from Maine to Georgia. Doubtless there were subsidiary causes affecting localities and interests, especially the sea-coast and commercial towns. But the yeomanry of the interior felt none of these grievances, and yet they were among the first to resist the British pretensions. The 19th of April, 1775, was indeed a notable day in the progress of national autonomy and representative government. Other days come and go. Their sun rises and hastens to its setting. But on the 19th of April, 1775, no second sun will ever rise. Its sun once risen will never set. It still rides high and clear. Its prescribed arc is not over the visible firmament, but over the ages.

Mr. Curtis Guild, Jr., a descendant of the Revolution, was the last speaker, and supported Collector Warren as to the nature of the lesson which he drew from the memories of the day. He said in part:

Our forefathers freed us from the tyranny of England, our fathers freed us from the curse of slavery, but if we are to preserve the liberties which they obtained for us, it must depend entirely upon the personal virtue and patriotism of every citizen of this republic. Many people believe their whole duty is done when they have paid their taxes and cast their ballots. We are not called upon to sacrifice our lives: we are called upon daily to sacrifice something of our leisure and pleasure, and something of the triumphs of literary and social advancement, that we may keep unstained the liberties handed down to us. A substitution of indirect legislation for the direct legislation of the townmeeting is a convenience that carries with it the threat of danger. A large part of the people seem to think the selection of those representatives depends, not on the people, but on politicians, and that the function of the people consists simply in choosing between the various party candidates on election day. It is the duty of every American citizen to be a politician, and see to it that he takes not simply an intelligent but an active share in the government of the American republic. We can aid our country by the destruction of corrupt candidates, by sweeping down corrupt Legislatures, and seeing to it that we have an honest ballot. What we need is not so much public criticism as private action.

Mr. Luther Conant, of Acton, showed a number of interesting relics and made a pithy explanatory address. Mr. James G. Buttrick, of Lowell, a lineal descendant of Major John Buttrick, who "fired the shot heard round the world," exhibited the gun from which came that shot. The thanks of the Society were then unanimously given to the speakers and President Barrett, and thus came to an end the largest and most enthusiastic meeting of the Society.

At the meeting of the managers on May 10, the resignation of Mr. Archibald M. Howe was presented, and accepted. Mr. William B. Clarke was chosen to fill the vacancy. Messrs, Bent, Brown, and Kimball were appointed a Committee of Publication for the ensuing year, and the committee was authorized to prepare an appendix to the book of the Society. The president, registrar, and historian were appointed the Committee on Applications. The president, registrar, and secretary were chosen a committee to consider the best method of introducing the marker of Revolutionary graves, with discretionary powers. Eleven gentlemen were elected members of the Society.

At a meeting of the managers on June 15, the historian and secretary were appointed a special press committee, and it was voted that they furnish extracts from the constitutions of the S. A. R. and S. R., showing the qualifications of members derived from collateral and direct descent. The offer of the National Society to present a silver medal to the best essayist on Revolutionary history in the principal colleges of the country was laid on the table. Forty candidates were elected to the Society.

At a meeting of the managers on July 19, it was voted to print five hundred copies of an article communicated to the "Boston Transcript," on the qualifications of candidates to membership in the S. A. R. and S. R. The article, in the form of a letter, is as follows:

Many erroneous statements having been made concerning the qualifications of candidates for admission to the societies of the "Sons of the American Revolution," and the "Sons of the Revolution," particularly to the effect that admission to the former society is possible by what is called collateral descent, the Board of Managers of the "Sons of the American Revolution" have determined to publish the articles of the constitutions of the two societies relating to membership. These articles are taken from the authorized publications of the societies. Article III. of the constitution of the "National Society of the Sons of the American Revolution," as adopted at the national congress at Chicago, June 16, 1893, provides that any man twenty-one years of age and over shall be eligible to membership, "who is the lineal descendant of an ancestor who rendered actual service in the cause of American independence," as soldier, sailor, etc. Article IV. provides that the national society shall embrace all the members of the State societies. In accordance with this provision and similar provisions in the original constitution of the society, every member of the Massachusetts Society from its organization in 1889 is the lineal descendant of a Revolutionary patriot, as may be seen from an inspection of the Society's book, published in 1893, with a list of members and the military records of their ancestors.

Article II. of the By-Laws of the Massachusetts Society of the "Sons of the Revolution," also published by a committee in 1893, provides that any male person above the age of twenty-one years shall be eligible to membership "who is descended from an ancestor who assisted in establishing American independence, etc., provided (further) that when there shall be no surviving issue in direct lineal succession from an officer, soldier, or sailor, etc., the claim of eligibility shall descend and be limited to one representative at a time in the nearest collateral line o descent from such propositus, etc., and no other descendants in collateral lines shall be admitted in right of any services whatever."

The Board of Managers of the "Sons of the American Revolution" are content to place these articles side by side in refutation of any statements that eligibility by collateral descent, as it is called, is recognized in the election of its members.

It was voted that the Society suggest to the Art Commission of the City of Boston the desirability of removing the monument erected to the memory of the victims of the "Boston Massacre," now on the Common, to the Granary Burying-Ground, where their remains lie, as its most appropriate place; it was also voted to send a copy of this vote to the secretary of the Art Commission, and to the newspapers for publication. Eleven candidates were admitted to membership.

At the meeting of the managers on September 21, it was voted that the semi-annual meeting, or "fall field-day," be held at Plymouth on October 19. Twenty-two candidates were admitted to membership.

THE MARKER OF REVOLUTIONARY GRAVES.

The adoption by this and the National Society of a marker has given a decided impetus to the identification of the graves of our Revolutionary heroes. As already stated, the Massachusetts Society adopted a marker exhibited at the Fall meeting at Marblehead in 1893, and it was described in the book published last year. It was then voted to distribute samples of the marker to towns asking for them, and to ask the assistance of towns and cities in placing them on Revolutionary graves.

At the meeting of the National Congress in Washington on the 30th of April, 1894, the report of the Massachusetts Society was read by the president of this Society. After the reading of the report Mr. Barrett called attention to the importance of having every Revolutionary grave properly marked.

Upon motion of General Breckinridge, and after an interesting discussion, it was resolved:

That this Society approves the marker presented by the Massachusetts Society to designate the graves of Revolutionary soldiers when not otherwise marked. That it adopts it for itself and recommends it to the State societies with the understanding that its use is distinctly confined to THE SONS OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION.

The sum of six dollars was then appropriated to have the two markers shown remain in Washington as the property of the National Society to be retained in the custody of the Society of the District of Columbia, where they will be seen by people from all over the country.

At a meeting of the Managers of the Massachusetts Society on the 15th of January, 1894, it was voted that any sister society shall be entitled to purchase the marker of Revolutionary graves on the same terms as the Massachusetts Society. It was also voted that a committee, consisting of Messrs. Howe, Roe, and Ledyard Bill, be authorized to secure the legislation necessary to place this marker in the cities and towns of the Commonwealth.

At the meeting of the Board of Managers on the 13th of February a circular was presented by the historian of the Society, addressed to the selectmen of the towns of the State, in favor of the appropriation of money to purchase such Revolutionary markers as may be required. The circular was adopted.

At the meeting on March 30 a letter was read from the secretary of the Rhode Island Society, thanking the Massachusetts Society for the gift of a marker. Since that time, one hundred and fifty graves of Revolutionary soldiers have been located in that State, and will be marked.

At a meeting of the Board of Managers on May 10, 1894, a committee, consisting of the president, registrar, and secretary, was appointed to provide the best means of introducing the marker to the public.

At a meeting on June 15, the president read an order passed by the City Council of Boston, appropriating the sum of fifty dollars to be expended in procuring and placing markers upon the graves of Revolutionary soldiers in burial places in Boston, subject to the approval of the Board of Health. Messrs. Nathan Appleton, Levi S. Gould, and Charles H. Saunders were appointed a committee to carry the vote into effect with discretionary powers.

At a meeting of the Managers on July 19, Captain Appleton reported that the graves of the following soldiers in Boston cemeteries had been marked:

The committee was assisted by Mr. Henry A. May, of the Roxbury Military Historical Society, who received by vote the cordial thanks of the Board of Managers.

At a meeting of the Managers on July 19 it was voted to send a marker to the city of Newburyport to be placed on the grave of Col. Moses Little, who commanded an Essex County regiment at Bunker Hill, and it was forwarded to the Hon. J. J. Currier for that purpose.

At a meeting on August 31 a beautifully prepared marker was shown, to be placed on the grave of Lafayette in Paris, and Capt. Nathan Appleton was appointed a delegate from the Society with discretionary power to place this tribute on the grave of the French soldier and friend of America.

Mention has been made of the markers placed in the Concord cemeteries previous to the meeting of the Society on April 19, 1894; the names of the soldiers follow:

Lexington has marked the graves of fifty of her patriot sons, all that can be now identified, but only a small part of the two hundred and seventy who were in the service from that town for a longer or shorter period. Their names follow:

Capt. John Parker, Gov. William Eustis, Dr. Joseph Fisk, Col. William Munroe, Bezaleel Lawrence, Ebenezer Simonds, John Simonds, John Muzzey, John Munroe, Daniel Harrington, Joshua Reed, John Buckman, Francis Brown, Thomas Cutler, Benjamin Estabrook, Nathaniel Mulliken, Samuel Hastings, 1st, Samuel Hastings, 2d, Jonas Stone, Timothy Wellington, Thaddeus Parker, John Chandler, 1st, John Chandler, 2d, Joseph Underwood, Josiah Wellington, John Tidd, Reuben Locke, Jonathan Harrington, 1st, Jonathan Harrington, 2d, Benjamin Stearns, Ebenezer Munroe, Joseph Simonds, William Tidd, Isaac Hastings, Amos Marrett, Amos Muzzey, John Parkhurst, Joshua Reed, 2d, Thomas Locke, in the old cemetery.

Abram Smith, Josiah Smith, Isaac Smith, who are buried in the new cemetery.

Thomas Locke, Joseph Robinson, who are in the cemetery at East Lexington.

The town of Bedford has marked the graves of the following soldiers:

Lieut. Eleazer Davis, Nathaniel Page, Lieut. Moses Abbott, Moses Fitch, Solomon Lane, Benjamin Bacon, Capt. Jonathan Wilson (killed at Concord fight), Capt. John Moore, Solomon Stearns, Lieut. Edward Stearns, Reuben Bacon, David Lane, Peter (a freed slave).

Acton unanimously appropriated fifty dollars to mark the graves of her Revolutionary dead. The town will also mark the house of Capt. Joseph Robbins, near the old cemetery in East Acton, where the news of the approach of the British was received from Paul Revere's messenger. Captain Robbins had served in the French-Indian war. He commanded the East Acton company at Concord, where, with a voice which matched his height of six feet eight inches, he ordered forward the troops on the hill, four hundred farmers, as well as 'the soldiers. The Hon. William A. Wilde, of Malden, will mark with a tablet the house of Capt. Isaac Davis, the spot where the Acton company met for their march to Concord. Mr. Luke Blanchard will place a monument on the site of the house from which Calvin Blanchard, Luther Blanchard, and Abner Hosmer, the first man killed at the North bridge, started for the Concord fight.

Eighteen graves were marked in Fitchburg, by the thoughtful munificence of Mr. Henry A. Willis, a former manager of this Society. The names of the soldiers thus honored are:

Gen. James Reed, Major John Goodridge, Lieut. Joseph Fox, Lieut. William Tharlo, Lieut. Kendall Boutelle, Lieut. Asa Perry, Lieut. Seth Phillips, Sergt. Ephraim Osborne, John Merriam, Aaron Derby, Daniel Harris, Samuel Harris, Joseph Downe, John Thurston, Elijah Garfield, Reuben Gibson, William Farr, Joseph Adams

Sudbury has placed eighteen markers over the graves of Revolutionary soldiers in the cemetery in Sudbury Centre, the oldest one in the town. Their names are as follows:

Col. Jonathan Rice, Capt. Daniel Bowker, Capt. Joseph Goodnow, Capt. Jabez Puffer, Lieut. Daniel Goodenow, Lieut. Abijah Brigham, Lieut. Daniel Noyes, Sergt. Elijah Willis, Deacon Josiah Haynes, Deacon Oliver Noyes, Reuben Willis, Jonas Balcom, James Carter, William Rice, Jonathan Fairbank, Isaac Maynard, John Goodnow, John Maynard.

It is expected that many other graves will be similarly marked

Topsfield has placed twenty markers in her cemetery over the graves of the following soldiers:

Roger Balch, David Balch, David Balch, Jr., Daniel Estey, Deacon John Gould, John Gould, Jr., Capt. Joseph Gould, John Hood, Jr., Samuel Hood, Eleazer Lake, Jr., Capt. Stephen Perkins, Zebulon Perkins, Moses Perkins, Thomas Perkins, 4th, Daniel Porter, Benjamin Pike, Jacob Towne, Jacob Towne, Jr., David Towne, Jr., Moses Wildes

Of these Deacon John Gould was a member of the Provincial Congress; the marker was placed by his great-grandson, Dr. Benjamin A. Gould, a manager of this Society; John Hood, Jr., was at Bunker Hill, and served through the war; Samuel Hood, Thomas Perkins, 4th, and Jacob Towne, Jr., were of the guard to Burgoyne and his soldiers; the others responded to the Lexington alarm; the markers were placed by their descendants, through the efforts of Mr. John Hood Gould, of the Massachusetts S.A.R.

Besides the action taken in the towns before mentioned. markers have been placed over the graves of many Revolutionary soldiers by members or private individuals. It is impossible to give the names of all the soldiers thus honored. Some of them, however, have been ascertained in time for this publication. It is hoped that successive year books may record the names and last resting-places of many hundreds of our departed heroes. In many cases Memorial Day was selected for the purpose of marking as well as decorating Revolutionary graves. Thus on the last anniversary, a delegation of the W. C. Kingsley Post 139, of Somerville, accompanied by a member of the Hancock family, placed a marker decorated with flowers in front of the tomb of John Hancock, in the Granary Burying-ground. In the old cemetery in Framingham a marker was placed upon the grave of Peter Salem, the colored man who fired the shot which killed Major Pitcairn, at Bunker Hill. This grave was for many years neglected, but a short time ago the town placed a suitable headstone over it.

The Society presented a marker to T. B. Pike, of Salisbury, to be placed upon the grave of his grandfather, Moses Pike, a Revolutionary soldier, who was buried in the old cemetery on the beach road.

The graves of the following Revolutionary soldiers have been marked:

Colonel William Prescott, of Pepperell, by citizens of that town

THE SURVIVORS OF BUNKER HILL IN 1825.

The following list of one hundred and eighty officers and soldiers who were in the battle of Bunker Hill, and who reported themselves to the acting quarter-mastergeneral, June 17, 1825, on the occasion of laying the corner-stone of the Bunker Hill monument, is taken from the original roll in the office of the adjutant-general and is reprinted by his permission. The roll was made up in pursuance of the following resolve respecting Revolutionary soldiers, passed by the General Court, June 16, 1825: "Resolved, That there be allowed and paid out of the treasury of the Commonwealth to such of the officers and soldiers who were in the battle of Bunker Hill, on the 17th of June, A.D. 1775, and who may be present in the town of Charlestown or city of Boston on the approaching anniversary of that event, the sum of three dollars each, and also the sum of one dollar for every twenty miles of travel to and from said town or city.

"Resolved, That the acting quarter-master-general be directed to prepare a roll of all such officers and soldiers as may report themselves to him for the procession aforesaid, and that his Excellency the Governor with the advice of the Council be requested to draw his warrant on the treasury for the amount in favor of each person who may be on said roll."

The pay-roll thus prepared was signed by each officer and soldier or his representative and is preserved in the Adjutant-General's office. The list by regiments is as follows:

THE NUMBER OF SOLDIERS IN THE REVOLUTION.

The first document issued by the Massachusetts Society was one admirably calculated to awaken an interest throughout the State. It was furnished by the president, and was as follows:

Whole number enlisted during the war, from the thirteen colonies, was 395,324. Whole number enlisted during the war, from Massachusetts, was 92,562.

At a meeting of the Managers of this Society, held August 7, 1889, it was voted that the paper submitted by the president, and printed on the opposite page, showing the number of troops enlisted from each State during the Revolutionary War, together with the list of officers of this Society, be printed for the use of the members, and that a copy be sent to each of the officers of the National Society and each State society in the United States. We believe the source from which these figures are obtained entitles them to our fullest confidence.

Frequent meetings were held by the Managers, and upon September 8 the Board in a body paid their respects to the President of the United States, at a reception given by the City of Boston in Faneuil Hall.

At the laying of the corner-stone of the extension of the State House, Dec. 21, 1889, a full list of the members of this Society, finely engrossed on parchment, was deposited in the copper box prepared by the State for the occasion.

INSIGNIA.

A full description of the insignia of the Society, the seal, badge, and rosette, was given in the book published in 1893. It was announced in the last Congress of the National Society, that after much deliberation, the Executive Committee had adopted a badge of the same form as the previous one, but intended to take the place of all others hitherto used. The price of the badge, or cross of St. Louis, adapted to this Society, is nine dollars. It may be obtained of Messrs. Tiffany & Co., of New York, on presentation of a certificate of membership, which will be furnished by the registrar. The rosette may be procured of the registrar for thirty cents.

INFORMATION.

Persons eligible for membership in the Massachusetts Society can obtain the necessary information concerning their Revolutionary ancestors at the office of the Secretary of State, in the State House, Boston. The clerks in the office will aid an applicant in his research, and for a fee of one dollar a certificate will be given, signed by the Secretary of State, detailing the ancestor's service.

If the ancestor was a pensioner, application can be made directly to the Pension Office in Washington for a certificate, and this evidence is conclusive. No charge is made unless for extraordinary services.

The registrar, Dr. Francis H. Brown, 4 Exchange Place, Boston, will furnish information to those wishing to become members of the Society.
